

Suggested Electronic Resources

For a variety of resources on the Hebrew Bible and the New Testament, including short articles, videos, artwork, and word studies, this website is produced by the Society of Biblical Literature.

<https://www.bibleodyssey.org/>

A podcast and YouTube channel about the New Testament and Christian origins produced by the New Testament scholar Mark Goodacre, of Duke University.

<https://podacre.blogspot.com/>

An online database of scholarly articles across a range of disciplines, including theology and religious studies. Sign up and download up to 100 articles a month for free.

<https://www.jstor.org/>

Includes podcasts, books, and other resources to bring biblical scholarship into everyday life.

<https://thebiblefornormalpeople.com/>

A collection of primary texts by the Church Fathers and others of early Christianity.

<https://ccel.org/>

Fun and engaging videos and other sources useful for teaching.

<https://bibleproject.com/>

A guide to open-access scholarly resources on religion and theology:

<https://guides.library.duke.edu/openreligion>